u0026#34;Kathryn Cramerí reveals some of the complex responses of writers and literary critics to the new possibilities for the expression of Catalan identities which resulted from Spainu0026#39;s transition from dictatorship to democracy. The study begins by considering the cultural and political context of the Catalan novel from the u0026#39;Renaixencau0026#39; to the present day, and then offers a detailed analysis of novels by four very different writers - Montserrat Roig, Manuel de Pedrolo, Juan Marse (who writes in Spanish) and Biel Mesquida - all of whom seem to share an underlying thematic preoccupation with both individual and national u0026#39;transitionsu0026#39; and the intricate relationship between language and identity. These writers challenge institutionalised visions of the link between Catalanism, the Catalan language and Catalan literature, and offer a more pluralistic and personalised version of what it is to call oneself a Catalan.u0026#34;
