The title of this volume intentionally echoes that of a landmark issue of Textus on «Linguaging» in and across Human Groups,u003c/iu003e edited by Giuseppina Cortese and Dell Hymes in 2001, since the notion of 'linguaging' seems to capture most effectively the essence and the continuity in the life and work of Giuseppina Cortese, to whom the book is dedicated. It brings together contributions by a number of distinguished scholars that shed new light on current developments in this dynamic area of discourse analysis, especially taking into account recent research and emerging insights on speech communities and communities of practice. u003cbr /u003e The sections in the volume are designed as main threads of a new investigation into 'linguaging'. The first, entitled u003cbr /u003eLinguaging Awareness,u003cbr /u003e deals with recent findings in applied linguistics, exploring key topics in language acquisition, language learning and teaching and the changing role of the media. The second section, u003cbr /u003eLinguaging Identity,u003cbr /u003e prioritizes the theme of the construction of identity in text and talk within a linguistic and linguaging framework. The third section, u003cbr /u003eLinguaging Community,u003cbr /u003e explores the notion of community, of the lifeworld and the textworld emanating from a variety of domains, closely inspecting contemporary events and showing, on a continuum with Cortese's approach, how memory of the past gives depth of meaning to a discourse analysis that is geared to linguistic and textual awareness.
